King Slaying Suspect Eludes Police Hunt

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The nation's police agencies intensified a nationwide search today for Eric Starvo Galt, the elusive fugitive sought in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

They were aided by thousands of wanted posters, just gaining wide distribution two days after the FBI publicly identified Galt, 36, as the man it had sought secretly since a week after the April 4 slaying.

The FBI refused comment on queries about whether it believes Galt is the man's real name or was simply a cover built painstakingly over a number of months by the beer-drinking lover of hillbilly music.

Two aliases—John Willard and Harvey Lowmyer—were listed on the federal conspiracy warrant issued against Galt in Birmingham, Ala., Wednesday.

Ky Denies He Smuggled Opium into South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Both the U.S. Embassy and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky today denied a report being investigated by a Senate subcommittee that the CIA fired Ky for smuggling opium in 1963.

The report, made to the Senate Foreign Expenditures subcommittee, said Ky commanded air crews in a secret CIA operation flying saboteurs to North Vietnam and took advantage of the setup to fly opium from Laos to Saigon.

The U.S. Embassy said there was "no truth in the story that Ky was removed from any position by any element of the U.S. government for opium smuggling or for any other reason."

Asked if the embassy had any information connecting Ky with opium smuggling, an embassy spokesman said only: "There is no truth to the allegation."

LBJ Cancels Major Speech

Feels Necessity
No Longer Exists

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has called off a planned speech to Congress that many had felt would include sweeping new attacks on big-city problems.

He told newsmen Thursday while flying home from California that since he had originally scheduled the address, Congress has passed a civil rights bill with a strong open-housing section. He said he therefore no longer sees any need for a special address to a joint congressional session.

Johnson announced April 5 he would appear before Congress. This word came a day after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. However, the President postponed his April 8 speech when he learned later that the slain civil rights leader's funeral was not to be held until April 9.

Johnson had said he would make recommendations and suggestions for action—"constructive action instead of destructive action in this hour of national need."

There had been speculation Johnson would propose major programs to meet the needs of the cities, many of them swept by violence following King's slaying. But it was also widely noted the Chief Executive already was under congressional direction to cut spending in the face of a mounting deficit—a price he had said he was willing to pay for enactment of his proposed 10 per cent surcharge in income taxes. That proposal is still before Congress.

Deny Lot Smells Bad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court of the United States, speaking from its exquisite marble temple, denies its parking lot smells of old rags and buried cats.

The allegations were made by Robert I. Schramm, 29, who lives next to the lot. He sought a District Court order last February directing the Supreme Court to clean up the lot.

This was done, Schramm said, but he declined to drop his court fight pending assurance the lot would be kept clean.

The Supreme Court said Thursday the lot is owned by a firm from which it leases parking space. It said the firm assured the court the lot isn't dirty now and never has been.

Furthermore, the court said, it is a government agency and can't be sued without its consent. It refused such consent.

U.S. Proposes 10 More Sites For Viet Talks

Some Feel Paris
Will Probably Be Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, indicating growing impatience with the impasse over where to make initial peace contacts with North Vietnam, is looking to Hanoi for a speedy reply to the latest American proposal listing 10 new potential sites.

Although the new U.S. proposal raised to 15 the number of nations it lists as acceptable locations for such talks, diplomatic sources in Washington were betting that Paris—not included in the newly padded total—would eventually be agreed on by both countries.

These diplomats, including some from nations allied with the United States in the war, reasoned that since neither Washington nor Hanoi has mentioned Paris as a possible site its compromise selection would result in neither side losing face.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin indicated how important such a face-saving compromise might be to Hanoi when he said Thursday in Rawalpindi, Pakistan, that North Vietnam will conduct peace talks "as a nation that has not been vanquished, that has not been defeated."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk called late Thursday on Hanoi to give a "serious and responsive answer" to the U.S. proposals for preliminary talks on peace negotiations.

Rusk warned Hanoi that U.S. restraint in restricting the bombing of North Vietnam on March 31 was meant to inspire discussions on ending the war and not be an excuse for what he called propaganda warfare while the battle went on.

Snow, Rain Hit West

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A massive spring storm swept the western states today, hurling snow across the southern Rockies and spilling heavy rain and hail into the Plains.

Eight inches of snow blanketed Flagstaff, in northern Arizona, and 2 inches covered Bryce Canyon, Utah, during the night.

Thunderstorms crackled over Texas and Oklahoma, dumping up to 2 inches of rain on Del Rio, in southwest Texas, and Mineral Wells, in the north-central part of the state.

A hailstorm pounded Moore, Okla., late Thursday night, covering the ground with hailstones measuring up to an inch in diameter.

Cooler air sweeping into the Pacific Northwest triggered showers, with snow falling in the mountains. Showers also accompanied an invasion of chilly weather into parts of the Northeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged down to a low of 22 at Lander, Wyo.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans get to enjoy an extra hour of daylight the evening of Sunday, April 28 when the state goes on Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The time change is effective at 2 a. m. April 28 when the clocks will be moved up one hour. Fast time continues until 2 a. m. Oct. 27, the last Sunday in the month, when the clocks are turned back.

Man Slain In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two men were shot, one fatally, early today at a Euclid Avenue bar.

Homicide detectives said Arnie Hallai, 27, of Cleveland was killed with two bullet wounds in the chest from a .25 - caliber pistol.

Ronald Sitz, 21, of Garfield Heights, was reported in poor condition at St. Vincent Charity Hospital. Detectives said he was shot in the chest and thigh after he chased the assailant out of the bar.

Police said they had been unable to establish a motive for the shooting. Two men were arrested for questioning, but police said witnesses could not identify either as the one who fired.

Record Raids Hit North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes made their heaviest raids of the year on North Vietnam Thursday, flying the largest number of missions in nearly four months, military spokesmen announced today.

Hitting targets in the southern panhandle in accordance with President Johnson's curtailment order, U.S. pilots took advantage of clearing weather to fly 145 missions, one more than a year's previous record on Jan. 6. It was the largest number since Dec. 26, when 150 were flown.

The total was nearly triple the average number of missions the Americans flew against enemy supply routes, convoys and gun positions in the southern part of North Vietnam before Johnson on April 1 ordered them to stay south of the 20th parallel of latitude.

Ten days later the President, in a move never publicly announced, put the northern limit for bombings raids at the 19th parallel, 170 miles north of the demilitarized zone. The curtailment was aimed at inducing the North Vietnamese to open peace negotiations.

The deepest reported penetration Thursday was a raid by Navy A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Enterprise on a railroad bridge one mile below the 19th parallel and 169 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

Some U.S. sources say that despite Johnson's curtailment order allowing the North Vietnamese to move war supplies with impunity down to the 19th parallel, a distance of 140 miles from Hanoi, there has been very little change in enemy truck traffic in the southern panhandle.

The U.S. Command said a limited damage assessment showed the raiders Thursday destroyed or damaged 14 bridges, 13 trucks and 16 boats, barges or sampans; cut bridges and roads in many places, and touched off several secondary explosions and fires, indicating the planes hit fuel or ammunition dumps.

The pilots reported anti-aircraft fire was light to moderate. One of the worst helicopter crashes of the war occurred in South Vietnam. Two U.S. Army UH1 choppers collided in flight 59 miles southwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon while on a combat operation. Eighteen South Vietnamese civilian irregulars and eight American military personnel were killed. There were no survivors.

Woman To Get Tax Refund Of $565,980

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ruling that a $1 million trust fund set up by the late Helen Wade Greene in 1957 was not a tax dodge, U.S. District Court Judge James C. Connell ordered a $565,980 tax refund Thursday for Mrs. Greene's daughter.

Mrs. Greene died within three years after setting up the trust fund for her daughter, Helen Greene Perry of Shaker Heights, and the Internal Revenue Service ruled the money "a gift in contemplation of death" to avoid estate taxes.

But Judge Connell said there was a complete lack of evidence to support the government's case and directed a jury to order the tax refund. The judge said Mrs. Greene had created the trust fund so her daughter could take over the charities her family had helped for generations.

Mrs. Greene also set up a taxable $9 million trust for her daughter.

Inflationary Spiral Brings Money Curb

Blame Inaction
On Tax Boost
For New Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans face the prospect of harder-to-get loans at higher interest rates following the second increase in little more than a month in the Federal Reserve System's discount rate.

In what it termed an attempt to beat back accelerating inflation, the Federal Reserve Board stepped harder on the economic brakes in approving effective today a discount rate of 5.5 per cent for 3 of its 12 banks—New York, Philadelphia and Minneapolis. It had been 5 per cent.

The other nine banks are expected to follow in a move virtually sure to trigger higher interest rates on loans throughout the economy.

A nationwide AP survey showed meanwhile that interest rates on home mortgages are nearing 8 per cent already in some sections and the cost of an average home has climbed about $2,500 since 1966.

The new rate is the highest since just before the 1929 stock market crash when it went to 6 per cent.

One government source said the boost from 5 per cent was not unexpected in view of congressional inaction on President Johnson's request for the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, pushed by the administration as an anti-inflation weapon.

A boost in the discount rate from 4.5 to 5 per cent in mid-March was designed to stem inflation and cope with the gold crisis which reached its peak at that point.

The board cited spiraling inflation and a desire to strengthen the dollar abroad in announcing its action and at the same time approving higher interest rates — up to 6.25 per cent — which banks may pay to attract more savings through certificates of deposit of $100,000 or more.

The second move will enable commercial banks to compete more effectively for savings with high interest rates elsewhere in the economy—on corporate bonds, for example.

Other interest rates paid by banks remain unchanged including the 4 per cent maximum on passbook savings accounts and the 5 per cent maximum on certificates of deposit of less than $100,000.

The discount rate is the charge commercial banks must pay when they borrow money from the Federal Reserve. Other interest rates are pegged upward from it.

Earlier this week the Commerce Department reported the sharpest dollar increase ever in the economy during the first quarter of this year—$20 billion—and listed the inflation rate at an unacceptable 4 per cent.

Rhodes Predicts Tourist Boom

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes predicted today that more than $200 million in additional tourist dollars would pour into Ohio this year.

"Last year Ohio's tourist industry amounted to $2.8 billion and the experts tell us it will go to $3 billion this year," the governor told an industrial appreciation luncheon.

"Tourism is a big industry in Ohio," he said. "It creates jobs. For each additional one million tourists, we need 1,700 new jobs."

He also said that tourism in Ohio resulted in $420 million in additional state and local taxes.

Report Scattered Cable Damage in Bell Telephone Strike

CLEVELAND (AP)—The first damage to lines following a nationwide walkout against the Bell Telephone System was reported today in the Toledo area.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. reported that a cable was cut about 15 miles east of Toledo and a 30-foot section of the cable was missing, adding to the difficulty in making repairs.

The said cable was damaged by gunfire Thursday night, but that damage was quickly repaired, a company spokesman said.

Ohio Bell said the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's long lines cable served customers from Chicago to the East, but a spokesman said he didn't know how many lines were involved.

A few of the lines served the Federal Aviation Administration Control Center at Oberlin, but service to the center was restored quickly because of its high priority.

The spokesman said calls were being rerouted and that Ohio Bell and AT&T crews were working on repair of the cable.

He said the FBI had entered the investigation of the incident.

Supervisory personnel took over operation of switchboards Thursday afternoon as more than 20,000 telephone company employees in Ohio joined the walkout.

About 165,000 Bell employees in 16 states are taking part in the strike, the first national work stoppage against the system in 21 years.

An Ohio Bell spokesman said the strike is not expected to have any drastic effect immediately on operations which are largely automated. Supervisory employees will handle emergency situations.

The effects will be felt by callers needing operator assistance to complete calls and by persons wanting new or changed installations.

A spokesman for the Cincinnati & Suburban Bell Telephone Co. appealed to telephone users to make as many calls as possible by dialing direct, and place operator handled calls at off-peak periods such as late in the evening.

About 18,000 Ohio Bell workers are on strike and an additional 3,500 with Cincinnati & Suburban, Western Electric Co. workers in Ohio have also stopped work.

Most of the Ohio Bell strikers are concentrated in the state's largest cities, with 6,400 in Cleveland, 2,700 in Columbus, 1,400 in Akron 1,700 in Dayton 1,200 in Toledo 780 in Youngstown and 770 in Canton, an Ohio Bell spokesman said.

Ohio is served by 110 telephone companies, many of them small independent firms not affiliated with Bell. But Ohio Bell and Cincinnati & Suburban Bell serve all or part of 46 of the state's 88 counties.

The Ohio Bell territory which is scattered and broken up by independent company territories also services these smaller cities — Fremont, Sandusky, Fostoria, Tiffin, Findlay, Upper Sandusky, Springfield, Piqua, Middletown, Xenia, London, Washington Court House, Lancaster, Zanesville, Coshocton, Lisbon, East Liverpool, Steubenville, Painesville, Ravenna, Massillon, St. Clairsville, Woodsfield, Marietta, Galipolis, Hillsboro and Ripley.

Ohio Bell said its final offer was a 75 per cent wage increase, ranging from $4 to $12 weekly and would add $9.5 million to its annual costs.

In Greater Cleveland, where rates are somewhat higher than in other parts of the state, the present weekly pay for the highest rated craftsman under the contract is $157.50, and the top rate for the operator group is $97, he company said.

King Slaying Suspect Eludes Police Hunt

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The nation's police agencies intensified a nationwide search today for Eric Starvo Galt, the elusive fugitive sought in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

They were aided by thousands of wanted posters, just gaining wide distribution two days after the FBI publicly identified Galt, 36, as the man it had sought since cretely since a week after the April 4 slaying. The FBI refused comment on queries about whether it believes Galt is the man's real name or was simply a cover built painstakingly over a number of months by the beer-drinking lover of hillbilly music. Two aliases—John Willard and Harvey Lowmyer—were listed on the federal conspiracy warrant issued against Galt in Birmingham, Ala., Wednesday afternoon and the first degree murder warrant issued by the state against him here Wednesday night.

"John Willard" was the name used by the man who checked into a Main Street rooming house three hours before King was shot as he stood on the balcony of a motel here. There has been no reference to the second alias.

The federal agency denied a report that it had taken into custody the man it said Galt described as his brother and that the brother was aiding in the search. The federal warrant, issued Wednesday, claimed that Galt and the brother entered into a conspiracy March 29 to violate King's civil rights.

The FBI covered many specific details about Galt's life over the past several years in its release including the fact that he is an avid dancer, has "rural speech," apparently lacks education and has a "nervous habit of pulling at an ear lobe with his left hand."

But except for his age, the FBI's statement was void of vital statistics, including Galt's birthplace or of any details of his movement prior to 1964.

Ky Denies He Smuggled Opium into South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Both the U.S. Embassy and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky today denied a report being investigated by a Senate subcommittee that the CIA fired Ky for smuggling opium in 1963.

The report, made to the Senate Foreign Expenditures subcommittee, said Ky commanded air crews in a secret CIA operation flying saboteurs to North Vietnam and took advantage of the setup to fly opium from Laos to Saigon.

The U.S. Embassy said there was "no truth in the story that Ky was removed from any position by any element of the U.S. government for opium smuggling or for any other reason." Asked if the embassy had any information connecting Ky with opium smuggling, an embassy spokesman said only: "There is no truth to the allegation."

"The vice president just laughed when he saw the story," said a spokesman for Ky. "He said it was groundless news, and there is no truth to it at all."

The spokesman added that Ky took part in the flights over North Vietnam, "but he would not get involved in smuggling. You know he pays no attention to matters about money."

The Senate subcommittee's staff director, Joseph Lippman, made the report available to The Associated Press in Washington with the stipulation that the source could not be identified.

"As the saying goes," the old man liked to say, "there's no use in crying over your hair if you've lost your head."

The old man lost his political head a few years back. This week, on his 74th birthday, he was unlikely to be crying at all. He may have had a good sardonic laugh.

Nikita S. Khrushchev, living out his waning years in obscurity, knows how to read between the lines of Pravda and Izvestia.

What he reads can give him a good helping of grim satisfaction. The men who dumped him unceremoniously from his pinnacle 4½ years ago are up to their necks in problems. Their words and deeds indicate a bad case of Kremlin jitters.

They called Khrushchev a "hare-brained schemer" for the way he tried to attack those same problems. Now they are trying to do pretty much the same thing as Khrushchev did, and their success is far from spectacular.

The Soviet Communist party is getting sasses more frequently and with more impunity than ever was the case when Khrushchev was party boss and premier.

The Kremlin is trying even harder than Khrushchev did to bring about a world Communist meeting to unify a movement which resists unification. Communist Romania's leaders have defied the Soviet hierarchy. Czechoslovakia is in ferment from a wave of reform sentiment which the Soviet leaders evidently regard as dangerously moving into control openly accuse the Soviet Union of Stalin's day of having engineered political murders in Czechoslovakia. Some in high places in Moscow today were part of that Stalin apparatus.

Soviet leaders have inspired an intensive campaign against capitalist influence." The Communist party is being told it is the target of a "secret war" waged by the United States to undermine Communist systems.

While Khrushchev was in the saddle, Czechoslovakia still was safely in the hands of an orthodox regime. Romania was only beginning to emerge in the role of annoying maverick. Red China was boisterously offensive to him, but today the Red Chinese are even more offensive and insulting to the current regime.

The pilots reported anti-aircraft fire was light to moderate. One of the worst helicopter crashes of the war occurred in South Vietnam. Two U.S. Army UH-1 choppers collided in flight 50 miles southwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon while on a combat operation. Eighteen South Vietnamese civilian irregulars and eight American military personnel were killed. There were no survivors.

There is division in the Communist world over policy toward the Vietnam war, and there is a rising tide of pro-Chinese sentiment among younger extreme leftists in the world.

Alone with his thoughts last Wednesday on his 74th birthday, Khrushchev may have had reason to reflect that loss of power had its compensations.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ruling that a $1 million trust fund set up by the late Helen Wade Greene in 1957 was not a tax dodge, U.S. District Court Judge James C. Connell ordered a $565,980 tax refund Thursday for Mrs. Greene's daughter.

Mrs. Greene died within three years after setting up the trust fund for her daughter, Helen Greene Perry of Shaker Heights, and the Internal Revenue Service ruled the money "a gift in contemplation of death" to avoid estate taxes.

But Judge Connell said there was a complete lack of evidence to support the government's case and directed a jury to order the tax refund. The judge said Mrs. Greene had created the trust fund so her daughter could take over the charities her family had helped for generations.

Mrs. Greene also set up a taxable $9 million trust for her daughter.

Inflationary Spiral Brings Money Curb

Blame Inaction On Tax Boost For New Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans face the prospect of harder-to-get loans at higher interest rates following the second increase in little more than a month in the Federal Reserve System's discount rate.

In what it termed an attempt to beat back accelerating inflation, the Federal Reserve Board stepped harder on the economic brakes in approving effective today a discount rate of 5.5 per cent for 3 of its 12 banks—New York, Philadelphia and Minneapolis. It had been 5 per cent.

The other nine banks are expected to follow in a move virtually sure to trigger higher interest rates on loans throughout the economy.

A nationwide AP survey showed meanwhile that interest rates on home mortgages are nearing 8 per cent already in some sections and the cost of an average home has climbed about $2,500 since 1966.

The new rate is the highest since just before the 1929 stock market crash when it went to 6 per cent.

One government source said the boost from 5 per cent was not unexpected in view of congressional inaction on President Johnson's request for the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, pushed by the administration as an anti-inflation weapon.

A boost in the discount rate from 4.5 to 5 per cent in mid-March was designed to stem inflation and cope with the gold crisis which reached its peak at that point.

The board cited spiraling inflation and a desire to strengthen the dollar abroad in announcing its action and at the same time approving higher interest rates — up to 6.25 per cent — which banks may pay to attract more savings through certificates of deposit of $100,000 or more.

The second move will enable commercial banks to compete more effectively for savings with high interest rates elsewhere in the economy—on corporate bonds, for example.

Other interest rates paid by banks remain unchanged including the 4 per cent maximum on passbook savings accounts and the 5 per cent maximum on certificates of deposit of less than $100,000.

The discount rate is the charge commercial banks must pay when they borrow money from the Federal Reserve. Other interest rates are pegged upward from it.

Earlier this week the Commerce Department reported the sharpest dollar increase ever in the economy during the first quarter of this year—$20 billion —and listed the inflation rate at an unacceptable 4 per cent.

Rhodes Predicts Tourist Boom

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes predicted today that more than $200 million in additional tourist dollars would pour into Ohio this year. "Last year Ohio's tourist industry amounted to $2.8 billion and the experts tell us it will go to $3 billion this year," the governor told an industrial appreciation luncheon.

"Tourism is a big industry in Ohio," he said. "It creates jobs. For each additional one million tourists, we need 1,700 new jobs."

He also said that tourism in Ohio resulted in $420 million in additional state and local taxes.

Nothing excites a young boy more than to catch a big fish. Joe Rhinesmith landed a big bass while fishing in Deercreek. Donnie Huff, who was fishing with Joe, lost another big one. Joe took his bass home, cleaned, and gave it to Donnie, which was a pretty nice thing to do. Donnie, incidentally fell off a roof last week five minutes too late to make the paper. Anyone that tries that hard should be mentioned.

Jim Clark is going to Lucasville Sunday to the Southeastern Poultry Association Swap Day. This week he hatched six goose eggs in his incubator. Now that he knows it can be done, he is going to get about one hundred more. His incubators are working overtime hatching everyday. He has nine hundred quail that will be ready to dress in six weeks. Other additions are New Zealand show rabbits and four nine-week-old registered Siamese kittens, two male and two female.

Jack Betts will motor to New Holland April 23rd to attend a Mosquito League Organizational Meeting. He will travel home that night as hotel accommodations are scarce in New Holland.

Mushroom hunters are springing up everywhere. You will find pros and amateurs. An amateur coming to work on Monday morning will invariably blurt out the amount of pounds collected over the weekend. The veteran has merely to add on a pound or two and he is the champ for another week. The battle of wits takes place between the old pros. They do not immediately commit themselves. They turn aside direct inquiries with evasive answers and smug smiles. For example: "How did you do?" "Oh, I got three bags full." Well, bags differ in size so this tells you nothing. "How big were the bags?" "Good size ones." Finally they work down to numbers. The one finally pinned down and outdone by the other might say this: "Oh, I thought you meant black ones. Now, adding on white ones or yellow ones . . ."

Having listened to mushroom stories for years, I decided to go. I asked one avid hunter if I could go along with him if I promised to give him any mushrooms I found. We finally reached his secret location (which every veteran has). I didn't know this and I would have thrown the map away if he had asked. He didn't have to tear it up. They taught me to make maps in the service and I just do it for fun.

You need strong legs. We started up a hill. We never came down. We climbed all day. Up! Don't ask me. I asked him many times. Why pick a hill that just goes up? Doesn't it ever go down? He finally wouldn't say anything.

You need telescopic-microscopic eyes. I was behind twenty to one in fifteen minutes. "There's one!" he would say. "Where? where?" "under your foot!" Determined to try harder, I found three by the time he had filled the sack. Maybe that one was a toad stool. I don't know. But I couldn't see throwing a fit over it. He probably would have caught it when he fried them.

Snakes. "I've been mushrooming here twenty years and never saw a snake," he says. Everyone says that. Well, I might not have a mushroom eye but I've got a snake eye. "What's that long wiggly thing?" I asked. He called it a blue racer. He must have been peeved because I saw it. Anyway he acted kind of funny when I laughed at him. I don't know mushrooms but I know blue rattlesnakes when I see them. I decided to humor him though. "Do blue racers hurt you?" "No, just chase you." "What happens if they catch you?" "Never stayed to find out. Just run to the nearest road." They won't cross the road," he said. "How far is the nearest road?" I asked. "About five miles." Well, he must have got lost because I waited there at the road for about three hours and he never showed up. I didn't want to go off and leave him but what else could I do? When I got home later that night or more nearly morning, actually, I wasn't too keen on mushrooming. But it sort of gets in your blood and I'm going again this year. Only thing is I'm hoping someone asks me before he does because I think it would only be fair to help someone else this year.

National Guard Mutual Aid U.S. Proposes Idea Dying from Inertia?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inertia apparently has killed any chance for a proposed "mutual assistance pact" which would allow states to send their National Guard units to help other states cope with riots this summer.

Some key officials say they believe the idea, advanced at a governor's conference last fall, will never get off the ground.

"The thing seems to have bombed," said one Pentagon official, who spoke of legal questions along with lack of action in state legislatures and Congress.

As things stand now, states have no legal basis for sending their National Guard troops outside their own borders. In the aftermath of the Newark and Detroit riots, the National Governors' Conference last October endorsed the draft of a model "National Guard mutual assistance pact."

A Washington staff member of the National Governors' Conference said the proposed pact envisioned that the governor of a state with a civil disturbance problem bigger than it could handle alone could request the governor of another state to send "aiding forces" to help out.

Assuming forces were sent, the proposed compact provided such features as insurance protection of National Guardsmen assigned to riot duty in a state other than the one in which he was enrolled.

The National Governors' Conference took the position this kind of a compact would require congressional consent.

The draft was introduced in several state legislatures but conference staff members said that so far as they know only Virginia has enacted the necessary bill.

Meanwhile, the sources said that no consent legislation has yet been introduced in Congress.

Some federal lawyers say there are legal complications over the question of command of Guard forces set across state lines unless they are in federal service. The proposed mutual aid pacts would not apply to federalized National Guardsmen, considered U.S. troops.

In the recent riots following the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., more than 47,000 National Guardsmen were mustered by governors and 15,000 were federalized.

In cases where state Guard troops were unable to deal with the problem, federal help was requested and more than 26,000 regular Army and Marine troops saw duty in Washington, Baltimore and Chicago.

Zambia Takes Over Control Of Business

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda announced today that the Zambian government is taking over 25 major industrial and commercial enterprises, ranging from retail chain stores to big transport corporations.

Among these is a logging company owned by the Anglo-American Corp., the giant copper mining group. Kaunda told a cheering crowd at Kabwe he was "asking" the companies to sell 51 per cent of their stock to the government. But he made clear he does not anticipate anyone refusing.

The move staggered the country's businessmen. Kaunda said it is part of a general plan to eliminate "exploitation by foreign capitalists."

Margie Lindsay Now Professional In Modeling

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Lindsay, the mayor's 15-year-old daughter who made her modeling debut last fall, has signed with a modeling agency to work as a $40-an-hour professional.

"It's fun," commented the lanky brunette Thursday. "You get to meet a lot of people and go a lot of places. And the money's pretty good."

She said her fees all go in the bank. "I put it in with my clothing allowance—but I'd better not say how much that is."

Margaret, called Margie with a hard G, said her parents did not hesitate to let her model. "They both liked the idea," she said. "Dad is a nut about show business, anyway. He always has been. And they're glad that it gives me something to do."

Estimate of Riot Damage $51 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Insurance Association reported Thursday that estimates of insured property damage in the widespread disorders that followed the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had risen to $51 million.

Last week, the association made an estimate of $45 million on the losses in about 100 cities hit by racial disorders.

Property damage not covered by insurance is not included in the association's figures.

Motorists Hurt In Car-Truck Collision

Two persons were injured in a car-truck collision that occurred on Route 104 just south of Route 762 at 11:30 a.m. Thursday.

Frederick Willis Dumbald, 19, Chillicothe, was taken to Chillicothe Hospital for treatment of a back injury. George Julius Coster, 51, Flatwoods, Ky., was treated for facial lacerations at Berger Hospital.

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley said a bulk tank milk truck driven by Dumbald and Coster's auto were both north bound.

Both the car and the truck were heavily damaged.

White Youths Slay Negro In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — A gang of white youths attacked a carload of Negroes on a South Boston street today, stabbing one to death and beating and stabbing the others, police said.

Four of the victims were women.

The incident occurred before dawn in a largely white section made up of tenements and businesses.

The driver of the car, James Cooper, 28, was stabbed 20 times. He died in City Hospital. A passenger, George Rogers, 26, and a white youth, Thomas Nee, 21, were hospitalized with stab wounds. They were on the danger list.

Patrick Linsky, 22, a white youth, was arrested and charged with Cooper's slaying after the victim's wife, Lena May, 26, identified him, police said. Mrs. Cooper was treated for facial slashes.

The incident occurred on D Street in front of a police station. A police spokesman said the two officers inside were unaware of what was taking place outside.

Police said the car stopped for a red light, and whites on the sidewalk began taunting the Negroes who did not respond.

Meanwhile, a second group of 15 to 20 white youths came up and blocked the car.

Police said the gang grabbed a plank and smashed the windshield. The whites pulled the occupants from the car and began to beat and stab them.

Cooper managed to wrest a knife from an attacker and cut him on the chin.

Three of the Negroes managed to escape. Two pulled a fire alarm box, and one ran into the police station.

The whites dispersed when they heard the sirens of approaching fire engines and police cars.

National Guard Mutual Aid Idea Dying from Inertia?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inertia apparently has killed any chance for a proposed "mutual assistance pact" which would allow states to send their National Guard units to help other states cope with riots this summer.

Some key officials say they believe the idea, advanced at a governor's conference last fall, will never get off the ground. "The thing seems to have bombed," said one Pentagon official, who spoke of legal questions along with lack of action in state legislatures and Congress.

As things stand now, states have no legal basis for sending their National Guard troops outside their own borders. In the backwash of the Newark and Detroit riots, the National Governors Conference last October endorsed the draft of a model "National Guard mutual assistance pact."

A Washington staff member of the National Governors Conference said the proposed pact envisioned that the governor of a state with a civil disturbance problem bigger than it could handle alone could request the governor of another state to send "aiding forces" to help out.

Assuming forces were sent, the proposed compact provided such features as insurance protection of National Guardsmen assigned to riot duty in a state other than the one in which he was enrolled.

The National Governors Conference took the position this kind of a compact would require congressional consent.

The draft was introduced in several state legislatures but conference staff members said that so far as they know only Virginia has enacted the necessary bill.

Some federal lawyers say there are legal complications over the question of command of Guard forces set across state lines unless they are in federal service. The proposed mutual aid pacts would not apply to federalized National Guardsmen, considered U.S. troops.

In the recent riots following the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., more than 47,000 National Guardsmen were mustered by governors and 15,000 were federalized.

In cases where state Guard troops were unable to deal with the problem, federal help was requested and more than 26,000 regular Army and Marine troops saw duty in Washington, Baltimore and Chicago.

Zambia Takes Over Control Of Business

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda announced today that the Zambian government is taking over 25 major industrial and commercial enterprises, ranging from retail chain stores to big transport corporations.

Among these is a logging company owned by the Anglo-American Corp., the giant copper mining group.

Kaunda told a cheering crowd at Kabwe he was "asking" the companies to sell 51 per cent of their stock to the government. But he made clear he does not anticipate anyone refusing.

The move staggered the country's businessmen. Kaunda said it is part of a general plan to eliminate "exploitation by foreign capitalists."

Margie Lindsay Now Professional In Modeling

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Lindsay, the mayor's 15-year-old daughter who made her modeling debut last fall, has signed with a modeling agency to work as a $40-an-hour professional.

"It's fun," commented the lanky brunette Thursday. "You get to meet a lot of people and go a lot of places. And the money's pretty good."

She said her fees all go in the bank. "I put it in with my clothing allowance—but I'd better not say how much that is."

Margaret, called Margie with a hard G, said her parents did not hesitate to let her model.

"They both liked the idea," she said. "Dad is a nut about show business, anyway. He always has been. And they're glad that it gives me something to do."

Estimate of Riot Damage $51 Million
NEW YORK (AP) — The American Insurance Association reported Thursday that estimates of insured property damage in the widespread disorders that followed the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had risen to $51 million.

Last week, the association made an estimate of $45 million on the losses in about 100 cities hit by racial disorders.

Property damage not covered by insurance is not included in the association's figures.

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley said a bulk tank milk truck driven by Dumbald and Coster's auto were both north bound.

Coster was, following the truck. He apparently started to pass the truck and hit it in the rear, knocking it out of control.

Both the car and the truck were heavily damaged.

White Youths Slay Negro In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — A gang of white youths attacked a carload of Negroes on a South Boston street today, stabbing one to death and beating and stabbing the others, police said.

Four of the victims were women.

The incident occurred before dawn in a largely white section made up of tenements and businesses.

The driver of the car, James Cooper, 28, was stabbed 20 times. He died in City Hospital.

A passenger, George Rogers, 26, and a white youth, Thomas Nee, 21, were hospitalized with stab wounds. They were on the danger list.

Patrick Linsky, 22, a white youth, was arrested and charged with Cooper's slaying after the victim's wife, Lena May, 26, identified him, police said. Mrs. Cooper was treated for facial slashes.

The incident occurred on D Street in front of a police station. A police spokesman said the two officers inside were unaware of what was taking place outside.

Police said the car stopped for a red light, and whites on the sidewalk began taunting the Negroes who did not respond.

Meanwhile, a second group of 15 to 20 white youths came up and blocked the car.

Police said the gang grabbed a plank and smashed the windshield. The whites pulled the occupants from the car and began to beat and stab them.

Cooper managed to wrest a knife from an attacker and cut him on the chin.

Three of the Negroes managed to escape. Two pulled a fire alarm box, and one ran into the police station.

The whites dispersed when they heard the sirens of approaching fire engines and police cars.

Methodists Split over Ban on Alcoholic Beverages

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Methodists, getting set for the country's biggest church merger yet, are worrying over whether the new united denomination should stick to a long-time rule against drinking alcoholic beverages.

A change from required abstinence to a voluntary approach to it is being recommended to the constituting convention of the United Methodist Church, starting this Sunday in Dallas, Tex.

The present policy is "inconsistent and inaccurate" and is "producing hypocrisy and a loss of integrity in the corporate life of the Church and in the lives of many ministers and laymen," says the Church's board of social concerns.

But controversy surrounds the proposed change to a more open position, encouraging abstinence, but not demanding it.

The revision also would allow ministers to smoke. They now must promise to refrain from it, although laymen may use tobacco—a situation often called a "double standard" in the Church's discipline.

These matters of personal practice were among numerous issues before the meeting, which will unite the 10.3-million-member Methodist Church with the 747,000-member Evangelical United Brethren Church into one body of 11 million.

Urging adherence to the firm rule against liquor, Methodist

Bishop Everett W. Palmer, of Seattle, Wash., says "alcoholism is a trap" and that to accept even moderate drinking is a "bait for the trap."

"Moderation is the first step toward immorality," he writes in the denominational weekly, Christian Advocate. "Every heavy and immoderate drinker was once a moderate drinker. Every alcoholic was once a heavy drinker who imagined he could 'take it or leave it.'"

On the other hand, some Church leaders argue that the rigid stand against drinking has become unrealistic, and that it cripples the Church in ministering to persons most in need of help.

Methodism's "one-track abstinence policy" is blocking effective pastoral care to those with alcoholic problems, says the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Clinebell Jr., of the Church's Claremont, Calif., School of Theology.

Noting that recent studies indicate 61 per cent of adult Methodists occasionally drink, he says the present policy "leads to widespread shame . . . and nonenforcement" and undermines "authenticity and the growth of a healing community."

Under the present Methodist discipline, ministers and lay officials of congregations must pledge to abstain from alcohol, and general members may be tried and expelled for buying, selling or "persisting in the use of intoxicating liquor." Such cases, however, have become virtually unheard of.

The proposed change would encourage abstinence as a "sound and wise witness" to God's concern for mankind in a "society where drinking is so uncritically accepted and practiced" and where it does so much harm.

But the new standard also would openly accept those who do drink, saying: "Persons who practice abstinence should avoid attitudes of self-righteousness which break fellowship with those who do not abstain. Persons who drink should learn to recognize and avoid dangerous patterns of drinking as well as un-Christian attitudes toward persons who abstain."

The proposed shift from a prohibitive to a flexible stance is in line with that taken by some other Protestant bodies in recent years, as well as by national interdenominational organizations working to reduce alcoholism.

"The moral taboo on drinking is breaking down among Protestant churches," says the Rev. Jon L. Regier, a departmental official of the National Council of Churches. "At the same time, however, the churches are reaching a new awareness of the grave problems posed by irresponsible use of alcohol—and are seeking enlightened ways of dealing with these problems."

Some Protestant bodies, such as Southern Baptist Convention and numerous smaller evangelical groups, still firmly condemn any use of intoxicants.

Recent studies indicate that 77 per cent of Protestants sometimes drink, while 90 per cent of Catholics and 94 per cent of Jews do so, with Jews having the smallest incidence of alcoholics.

Teachers Protest Firing of Coach

Editors Feel News Curbs Not Needed Despite Riots

NEW YORK (AP)—Newspaper editors whose cities were hit by summer riots feel strongly that there is no need for a code of voluntary restraint in their news coverage.

This was the primary conclusion in a survey taken by William M. Ware, Cleveland Plain Dealer executive editor, for the Freedom of Information Committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors.

"Guidelines are impractical and possibly even irresponsible," one editor responded. "I certainly do not think they do infringe on freedom of information," said another.

Ware polled editors in cities struck by riots in the past three summers and said he delayed writing his report until the President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders had released its findings and recommendations. He also consulted the Justice Department's Community Relations Service.

The survey conclusions reported by Ware:

"1. Emphatically no need for a code of voluntary restraint. In fact, a positive determination to have no part of one.

"2. No real threat at the moment to FOI (freedom of information). But, in view of the trend of the times, a serious warning to keep the guard up.

"3. Agreement on news executives' responsibility to: (a) make plans for coverage of any eventuality; (b) obtain and publish all the news; (c) exercise sound judgment and justifiable restraint in timing, story play, headline treatment, (d) protect the staff; (e) take the initiative in projects beneficial to the community, such as prior news presentation of basic causes of unrest and riots and advocacy and support of total community cooperation in seeking solutions.

"4. Support for the belief newspapers met their responsibility for riot coverage moderately well, and disbelief of charges that newspapers fomented or contributed to the spread of riots."

'Mystery Box' Case Is Solved

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Navy frogmen solved the case of the "mystery box" to the tune of Mexican bands. Bathers below the border at Tijuana reported discovery of a big box covered with sand and Mexican newspapers voiced concern over possible radio activity from what they called the "mystery box." But authorities couldn't find any such object.

After two days of searching, the frogmen found a five-foot gasoline storage tank and as they searched "at least 1,000 Mexicans gathered on the bluff above the beach. They even brought bands," a Navy spokesman said.

What is Wisdom

A LIFE OF SATISFACTION IS ONE LIVED ACCORDING TO THE LAWS OF GOD

Scripture—Job 28:12, 13, 23, 28; Proverbs 3:13-18.

By R. H. RAMSEY

WHILE the dictionary defines wisdom as "knowledge of what is true or right coupled with just judgment as to action," most people tend to look upon it as something arising out of human experience or experimentation, or the result of man's careful, scientific efforts pondered over a considerable length of time. Very few people today think upon wisdom as a gift of God.

All Oriental nations had some wisdom literature, but the Hebrew idea of wisdom was somewhat different. It always had an ethical content. It was something that came down from God out of heaven to bless the man who lived out his life righteously, in recognition of the truth of God and God's will.

Today's lesson, the opening lesson of a three-month series concerned with the Biblical concept of wisdom, is based upon verses from the 28th chapter of the Book of Job and the 3rd chapter of the Book of Proverbs. Though the actual Scriptural content is but ten verses, it goes to considerable lengths to acquaint us with the nature, content and purpose of wisdom literature and points out the value of wisdom to spiritual growth and development.

There is a mystery about divine wisdom on which the Scripture dwells, for it lies in fearing God and departing from evil. Job, the prosperous and apparently happy man, had fallen into a state of great distress. Some of his friends came to reason with him. Basing their arguments on the belief that suffering is always the result of sin, they urged Job to confess his iniquity and be healed.

Such a formula—that suffering is always the result of evil—is too simple and uncomplicated to be real, for the innocent frequently suffer through the sins of the unrighteous. Job did not claim to be sinless, but he did maintain that his suffering was out of proportion to his sins.

When Jehovah spoke to Job at last, He showed him that man knows far too little to attempt to explain God's rule. This caused Job to ask where such wisdom can be found. The fact that Job wants wisdom and understanding is almost a guarantee.

than mere knowledge, more than collecting information and drawing conclusions therefrom. It is something that must be sought for in the daily experiences of a life lived out under the laws of God.

Wisdom is described as a queen with both hands full of gifts. In her right hand is long life, the chief of earthly blessings and one which God probably promised Solomon in connection with the gift of wisdom. True wisdom is the path to life because it shuns perils, averts them and provides advantages; controls the passions; teaches prudence and temperance; and especially because eternal life is its final issue.

The Bible admonishes us to secure this heavenly wisdom at all costs. There is nothing to be compared with it and we should be willing to part with any cherished possession to obtain and retain it.

Wisdom is a gift of God. It is God's approving hand on all we think, do or try to do. It brings us peace with God, peace with the world, and a complete peace which fills and quiets the whole man.

'Mystery Box' Case Is Solved

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Navy frogmen solved the case of the "mystery box" to the tune of Mexican bands.

Bathers below the border at Tijuana reported discovery of a big box covered with sand and Mexican newspapers voiced concern over possible radio activity from what they called the "mystery box." But authorities couldn't find any such object.

After two days of searching, the frogmen found a five-foot gasoline storage tank and as they searched "at least 1,000 Mexicans gathered on the bluff above the beach. They even brought bands," a Navy spokesman said.

What is Wisdom

A LIFE OF SATISFACTION IS ONE LIVED ACCORDING TO THE LAWS OF GOD

Scripture—Job 28:12, 13, 23, 28; Proverbs 3:13-18.

By R. H. RAMSEY

WHILE the dictionary defines wisdom as "knowledge of what is true or right coupled with just judgment as to action," most people tend to look upon it as something arising out of human experience or experimentation, or the result of man's careful, scientific efforts pondered over a considerable length of time. Very few people today think upon wisdom as a gift of God.

All Oriental nations had some wisdom literature, but the Hebrew idea of wisdom was somewhat different. It always had an ethical content. It was something that came down from God out of heaven to bless the man who lived out his life righteously, in recognition of the truth of God and God's will.

Today's lesson, the opening lesson of a three-month series concerned with the Biblical concept of wisdom, is based upon verses from the 28th chapter of the Book of Job and the 3rd chapter of the Book of Proverbs. Though the actual Scriptural content is but ten verses, it goes to considerable lengths to acquaint us with the nature, content and purpose of wisdom literature and points out the value of wisdom to spiritual growth and development.

There is a mystery about divine wisdom on which the Scripture dwells, for it lies in fearing God and departing from evil. Job, the prosperous and apparently happy man, had fallen into a state of great distress. Some of his friends came to reason with him. Basing their arguments on the belief that suffering is always the result of sin, they urged Job to confess his iniquity and be healed.

Such a formula—that suffering is always the result of evil—is too simple and uncomplicated to be real, for the innocent frequently suffer through the sins of the unrighteous. Job did not claim to be sinless, but he did maintain that his suffering was out of proportion to his sins.

When Jehovah spoke to Job at last, He showed him that man knows far too little to attempt to explain God's rule. This caused Job to ask where such wisdom can be found. The fact that Job wants wisdom and understanding is almost a guarantee of his salvation.

than mere knowledge, more than collecting information and drawing conclusions therefrom. It is something that must be sought for in the daily experiences of a life lived out under the laws of God.

Wisdom is described as a queen with both hands full of gifts. In her right hand is long life, the chief of earthly blessings and one which God probably promised Solomon in connection with the gift of wisdom. True wisdom is the path to life because it shuns perils, averts them and provides advantages; controls the passions; teaches prudence and temperance; and especially because eternal life is its final issue.

The Bible admonishes us to secure this heavenly wisdom at all costs. There is nothing to be compared with it and we should be willing to part with any cherished possession to obtain and retain it.

Wisdom is a gift of God. It is God's approving hand on all we think, do or try to do. It brings us peace with God, peace with the world, and a complete peace which fills and quiets the whole man.

A Tear for Congress

Hardly a day passes that some prominent politician doesn't say that such-and-such a principle is "not a political issue."

When analyzed, this quaint and well-worn saying actually means that the speaker doesn't think it should be a political issue.

It is a tribute to broadmindedness, in a way, that many political leaders make this sort of disavowal even when their statement might tend to work against their own political cause. Nevertheless, the saying is without much substance.

Controversial subjects have a way of becoming political issues even when they are rigorously excluded from political platforms.

For that matter, people are forever voting on immaterial things, such as the color of a candidate's hair, the sound of his voice or how well he remembers names and faces.

These are not political issues, either, but they swing elections more often than more important considerations.

What Makes an Issue?

The House of Representatives has passed a bill requiring members to divulge their principal incomes, but not until a tale to touch the hardest heart was unfolded by members of the House Ethics Committee.

They asked every major organization in the country for suggestions for an ethics code and, would you believe, only 10 persons outside Congress were heard from. The noisiest critics of Congress, they complain, declined to testify on what ought to be done to keep lawmakers honest.

Apparently most persons thought the issue of congressional ethics was so simple Congress could dispose of it unassisted.

It remained, however, for Indiana's Rep. Madden, acting chairman of the House Rules Committee, to contribute the wildest irrelevancy to the discussion of congressional ethics. Surveys, he said, showed there are fewer thieves in Congress than out.

Student 'Demonstrations'

When students leave the campuses for the summer vacation, it will be interesting to see whether "student demonstrations" — which have been worldwide in recent weeks — will subside. Is there something about a campus that triggers student devilry, and if so, what?

Whether the students are rioting against American "imperialism" in Tokyo or against the Vietnam War in the U.S., they must have been put in the mood for it by some force other than parental influence.

And they never demonstrate against communism.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — English is a language of glory.

It is a great tongue for saying memorable things, such as, "Give me liberty or give me death," "Don't give up the ship," "United we stand, divided we fall," "Keep off the grass," and "Pleeez step arraar emmadabus."

Every schoolchild soon learns a number of these deathless utterances. He quotes them at every opportunity throughout the rest of his life as proof that he has been educated.

What our schools fail to teach, however, is that the English language can also become a disaster area. It is full of pitfalls. No other form of communication makes it simpler for a person to put his foot in his mouth in public.

Here, for example, is a brief catalogue of remarks that often only catapult a fellow deeper into woe:

"If you don't see it, ask for it."

"Only one to a customer."

"I think I'll have to meet the last raise of yours just to keep the game honest."

"This year I'm not going to ask for advice on how to figure out my income tax. I think I know enough to do it myself."

"I think your problem, boss, is that you're gripping your putter wrong. Let me show you how I do it."

"We don't really have enough to retire on yet, but of course we plan to start a small business. Anybody can make money these days."

"Okay, double or nothing."

"I'd like to take you away from all this, Myrtle."

"It's an easy trick anyone can do. I just take the tablecloth in both hands, then give it a quick jerk. It comes off so fast it leaves your glasses and dishes standing there intact. Now watch as I—"

"Don't miss the show just because you can't get a baby sitter. Leave your kids with us. They're about the same age as ours, and they'll probably get along famously."

"What do I need with a lawyer? It's an open and shut case. All I'll have to do is tell the judge the simple facts of the matter."

"They're pretty weak. One more drink ought to fix me up just fine."

"If it's a favor you want, don't hesitate. After all, what's a friend for?"

"The zipper seems stuck. Here, let me fix it."

Joey Bishop

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "If I hadn't had a 39-week contract, I wouldn't be on the air today," says Joey Bishop, who is alive and thriving on late-night ABC.

This week marks the first anniversary of Bishop's brave foray into Carson country, and he received a handsome anniversary present from the network: a 39-week extension of his contract, putting his show into the fall of 1969.

Between celebrations, the sad-faced comic paused to reflect on the events of his year of entertaining the insomniacs. A veteran of four rugged years with a weekly series, he takes a realistic view of the television rate-card.

"If I had only a 26-week contract with ABC, I'm sure the network would have dropped me," he reasoned. "When you're set for only 26 weeks, that means that the executives will be making their decisions during the first 13 weeks. That could have been fatal for me."

The Bishop show was a slow starter. Reviews of the opening performance were generally unfavorable, and Joey thinks he knows why.

"Everyone who does this kind of show began quietly," he said. "Jack Paar started very slowly, so did Merv Griffin and Johnny Carson; Mike Douglas began in Cleveland, for heaven's sake. They were able to break in without too much attention, and they gradually built and held their audiences."

"But with me! For six months there had been talk about what I was going to do. Finally I went on the air, and the critics and viewers were told: 'This is what you've been waiting for!' There was bound to be some hostility."

"I was against selling the show; I thought it was a mistake to come on too strong. I said, 'Let's go on quietly and have the show start to build.' But it wasn't done that way, and I got clobbered."

Bishop refused to panic when ratings tumbled into the cellar. He continued working hard on preparation, spending long days at his Vine Street headquarters. His campaign to build an audience wasn't aided by a network strike which kept his show off the air for three weeks; the rating dropped while re-runs played.

But then the show started to climb. The Johnny Carson show on NBC continues to top the ratings, but ABC officials are eminently satisfied with Joey's performance, as evidenced by this week's renewal.

"Without being too hammy about it, I would say that the greatest satisfaction with the show is in being able to do some good for humanity," he remarked. "Like when an orphanage notified us that tickets to its benefit were selling poorly. We mentioned it on the show and sales jumped from $4,000 to $27,000. That sort of thing gives you a kick."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What is the incubation period for children's diseases? How long is a child contagious?

Mrs. K. D., Penn. Dear Mrs. D.: The incubation period varies with the exact communicable disease that children are subject to. Chicken pox has an incubation period of fourteen to sixteen days. Only on rare occasions is this extended to fourteen to twenty-one days. It is commonly accepted that a child can transmit this disease from the time of the appearance of the rash until about a week afterwards. There is as yet no way to prevent the onset of this condition. Once having had chicken pox there is usually lifetime immunity.

The incubation period for measles is seven to fourteen days. Usually evidences of infection are seen about the tenth day after exposure. The period of contagion lasts until the fifth or sixth day after the rash has become fully prominent. There now is an excellent and accepted vaccine which can permanently protect children from measles and its complications. No child should be deprived of the advantages of this new remarkable protective vaccine.

If a child has not been given the vaccine and has definitely been exposed to it, an injection of gamma globulin may prevent the onset of measles or lessen the severity of the disease if it does occur.

The incubation period for mumps is about fourteen to twenty-one days. A vaccine has been prepared and proved successful and will soon be widely distributed all over the world to prevent this childhood disease. When mumps occurs in adults it can be treacherous. The period of contagion lasts until all of the swelling of the face disappears. Some doctors are enthusiastic about the use of human gamma globulin as a preventative if a child or an adult has been exposed to active mumps infection.

The incubation period for polio or infantile paralysis may be seven to fourteen days but usually is less. The period of contagion is rather vague, but is considered to be about one week after the onset of the disease. The vaccine against poliomyelitis is one of the greatest boons to mankind. It has spared hundreds of thousands of people from lifelong incarceration in wheel chairs. It is absolutely un-

The World Today

By JOHN BECKLER (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The killing of thousands of pigs by farmers demanding higher prices for them dramatizes a rising interest among farmers in direct action rather than continued reliance on the complex and elaborate federal programs designed to help them.

The direct approach is also evident in Congress, where farm legislation of an entirely new kind is being considered, based on the collective bargaining procedures guaranteed to labor and industry 30 years ago.

During those three decades, the government, in an effort to hold down farm production and stabilize prices, has erected a dizzying edifice of farm law.

It takes 108,000 people to run the Department of Agriculture and it was only half-jokingly that an amendment was offered a few years ago prohibiting the department from acquiring more employees than there were farmers.

Yet despite costly, often confusing legislation the problems it is supposed to solve continue. Farm prices still fluctuate sharply, production increases yearly and farm income last year was lower than it was 20 years ago.

For the small farmer—the so-called "family farmer"—Congress talks the most about helping—the situation grows steadily worse. Unable to take any of his small acreage out of production to qualify for price supports, he gets almost no benefit from the programs. Squeezed by higher costs for everything he needs, he is being forced off the land.

In the last 15 years, 15 million people have moved from the farms and rural areas into the cities, compounding the urban problems now tormenting the nation.

With the current farm programs due to expire next year both the House and Senate are in the process of reviewing them and new departures have already been suggested.

In the Senate a bill has been introduced that would give farmers the right to bargain collectively with processors on the price of their crops. It is based on the same principle written into law in 1935 that gave organized labor the right to bargain collectively on the terms of its employment.

Originally tossed out as a suggestion by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman more than a year ago, the bill is unlikely to advance very far this year.

More promising is the future of another Senate bill that would extend the system of federal marketing agreements to all farm products. These production-and-price agreements, embodying collective bargaining procedures, now apply only to selected crops.

In the House a bill to extend the collective bargaining principle to farm labor has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee. It would apply only to large farms, which would be required to recognize and bargain with a union chosen by a majority of their employees.

Whatever the fate of these and similar bills they indicate an awareness in Congress that it may be better to let farmers, processors and farm workers work things out for themselves under the same rules that seem to have worked well for industry and labor.

James Marlow, who usually writes this column, is ill.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The record $20-billion growth of the American economy in the first quarter of 1968 is phenomenal.

If the figure were to be taken at face value it would mean that the expansion of the American economy in just three months — the expansion alone — would be more than the gross national product of Brazil for an entire year.

It would be the equivalent of creating an economy the size of Belgium's.

The figures cannot be taken at face value, however. About $8 billion of the "growth" was just inflation. Since the value of the dollar shrank in those three months, it simply took more dollars to measure output.

To assume that inflated figures represent true growth is to delude. It would be the same thing as a carpenter measuring feet with an inch clipped off his ruler, or a butcher weighing meat with his thumb on the scale.

Nevertheless, the $12 billion real growth still was enormous by any measure. It was bigger than the entire economy of Norway or Austria or Venezuela. And it came on top of a record low expansion of the American economy.

It is clear, however, that economists greeted these figures with chagrin. This is a giant with disorders, with ailments that result from trying to produce beyond its capacity and with failing to watch the signals that tell any growing body to take some medicine or relax or change its way of life.

The same report from the Commerce Department shows that defense spending once again rose sharply, arousing the suspicion that whatever is said about slowing the rate of military spending, what is done is something different.

The report disclosed also that the surplus in foreign trade was off, a condition that cannot be permitted to continue for long without confidence in the dollar deteriorating even more.

It showed that consumers were stepping up their commitments, that after prolonged restraint they are beginning to buy their long postponed needs and luxuries, which in the present state of things can only be inflationary.

The disorders are serious. Although inflation is damaging domestically because it shrinks the value of the dollar, the real danger is in what it does to the nation's exports. If American prices are inflated, how are U.S. goods to compete overseas?

If U.S. goods cannot compete effectively overseas, how is the nation to correct its imbalance of payments, how is it to bring into balance the amount exported and the amount imported?

With consumer demand strong again — at least for the present — this imbalance may be accentuated. Eager consumers very likely will increase their demands for the products and services of other nations.

This already is occurring in some areas of the economy. Foreign car sales are at a record high in the United States now, and the total is expected to reach about one million for the year, or a minimum of $2 billion.

This return of the consumer to the market comes at a very poor time. Ordinarily economists would welcome consumer buying strength. But now, even after months of consumer restraint, the economy is overheated.

All these disorders, no matter how serious, can be remedied.

The first reaction to the latest Gross National Product figures will be additional pressure for a tax increase. This would transfer buying power from the consumer to the federal government and permit it to pay its bills.

There's a wealthy lady-owner of a Park Avenue co-op who bribes the doorman every night to walk her dog before he signs off for the night. Unbeknownst to her, the doorman walks the dog straight over to a bar and grille on Third Avenue, and keeps the pooch contented under the table by feeding him pretzels while he guzzles two or three beers. One night he met a fellow convivial and lingered longer than usual at the bar while the dog contentedly munched on pretzel after pretzel. Next day the dog's owner favored the doorman with a particularly large tip. "You must have given my dog an extra long walk," she beamed, "because he was twice as thirsty as usual when he came back home!"

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What is the incubation period for children's diseases? How long is a child contagious?

Mrs. K. D., Penn.

Dear Mrs. D.: The incubation period varies with the exact communicable disease that children are subject to. Chicken pox has an incubation period of fourteen to sixteen days. Only on rare occasions is this extended to fourteen to twenty-one days. It is commonly accepted that a child can transmit this disease from the time of the appearance of the rash until about a week afterwards. There is as yet no way to prevent the onset of this condition. Once having had chicken pox there is usually lifetime immunity.

The incubation period for measles is seven to fourteen days. Usually evidences of infection are seen about the tenth day after exposure. The period of contagion lasts until the fifth or sixth day after the rash has become fully prominent. There now is an excellent and accepted vaccine which can permanently protect children from measles and its complications. No child should be deprived of the advantages of this new remarkable protective vaccine.

If a child has not been given the vaccine and has definitely been exposed to it, an injection of gamma globulin may prevent the onset of measles or lessen the severity of the disease if it does occur.

The incubation period for mumps is about fourteen to twenty-one days. A vaccine has been prepared and proved successful and will soon be widely distributed all over the world to prevent this childhood disease.

When mumps occur in adults it can be treacherous. The period of contagion lasts until all of the swelling of the face disappears. Some doctors are enthusiastic about the use of human gamma globulin as a preventative if a child or an adult has been exposed to active mumps infection.

The incubation period for polio or infantile paralysis may be seven to fourteen days but usually is less. The period of contagion is rather vague, but is considered to be about one week after the onset of the disease. The vaccine against poliomyelitis is one of the greatest boons to mankind. It has spared hundreds of thousands of people from lifelong incarceration in wheel chairs. It is absolutely un-

The World Today

By JOHN BECKLER (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The killing of thousands of pigs by farmers demanding higher prices for them dramatizes a rising interest among farmers in direct action rather than continued reliance on the complex and elaborate federal programs designed to help them.

The direct approach is also evident in Congress, where farm legislation of an entirely new kind is being considered, based on the collective bargaining procedures guaranteed to labor and industry 30 years ago.

During those three decades, the government, in an effort to hold down farm production and stabilize prices, has erected a dizzying edifice of farm law.

It takes 108,000 people to run the Department of Agriculture and it was only half-jokingly that an amendment was offered a few years ago prohibiting the department from acquiring more employees than there were farmers.

Yet despite costly, often confusing legislation the problems it is supposed to solve continue. Farm prices still fluctuate sharply, production increases yearly and farm income last year was lower than it was 20 years ago.

For the small farmer—the so-called "family farmer"—Congress talks the most about helping—the situation grows steadily worse. Unable to take any of his small acreage out of production to qualify for price supports, he gets almost no benefit from the programs. Squeezed by higher costs for everything he needs, he is being forced off the land.

In the last 15 years, 15 million people have moved from the farms and rural areas into the cities, compounding the urban problems now tormenting the nation.

With the current farm programs due to expire next year both the House and Senate are in the process of reviewing them and new departures have already been suggested.

In the Senate a bill has been introduced that would give farmers the right to bargain collectively with processors on the price of their crops. It is based on the same principle written into law in 1935 that gave organized labor the right to bargain collectively on the terms of its employment.

Originally tossed out as a suggestion by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman more than a year ago, the bill is unlikely to advance very far this year.

More promising is the future of another Senate bill that would extend the system of federal marketing agreements to all farm products. These production-and-price agreements, embodying collective bargaining procedures, now apply only to selected crops.

In the House a bill to extend the collective bargaining principle to farm labor has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee. It would apply only to large farms, which would be required to recognize and bargain with a union chosen by a majority of their employees.

Whatever the fate of these and similar bills they indicate an awareness in Congress that it may be better to let farmers, processors and farm workers work things out for themselves under the same rules that seem to have worked well for industry and labor.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The record $20-billion growth of the American economy in the first quarter of 1968 is phenomenal.

If the figure were to be taken at face value it would mean that the expansion of the American economy in just three months — the expansion alone — would be more than the gross national product of Brazil for an entire year.

It would be the equivalent of creating an economy the size of Belgium's.

The figures cannot be taken at face value, however. About $8 billion of the "growth" was just inflation. Since the value of the dollar shrank in those three months, it simply took more dollars to measure output.

To assume that inflated figures represent true growth is to delude. It would be the same thing as a carpenter measuring feet with an inch clipped off his ruler, or a butcher weighing meat with his thumb on the scale.

Nevertheless, the $12 billion real growth still was enormous by any measure. It was bigger than the entire economy of Norway or Austria or Venezuela. And it came on top of a record long expansion of the American economy.

It is clear, however, that economists greeted these figures with chagrin. This is a giant with disorders, with ailments that result from trying to produce beyond its capacity and with failing to watch the signals that tell any growing body to take some medicine or relax or change its way of life.

The same report from the Commerce Department shows that defense spending once again rose sharply, arousing the suspicion that whatever is said about slowing the rate of military spending, what is done is something different.

The report disclosed also that the surplus in foreign trade was off, a condition that cannot be permitted to continue for long without confidence in the dollar deteriorating even more.

It showed that consumers were stepping up their commitments, that after prolonged restraint they are beginning to buy their long postponed needs and luxuries, which in the present state of things can only be inflationary.

The disorders are serious. Although inflation is damaging domestically because it shrinks the value of the dollar, the real danger is in what it does to the nation's exports. If American prices are inflated, how are U.S. goods to compete overseas?

If U.S. goods cannot compete effectively overseas, how is the nation to correct its imbalance of payments, how is it to bring into balance the amount exported and the amount imported?

With consumer demand strong again — at least for the present — this imbalance may be accentuated. Eager consumers very likely will increase their demands for the products and services of other nations.

This already is occurring in some areas of the economy. Foreign car sales are at a record high in the United States now, and the total is expected to reach about one million for the year, or a minimum of $2 billion.

This return of the consumer to the market comes at a very poor time. Ordinarily economists would welcome consumer buying strength. But now, even after months of consumer restraint, the economy is overheated.

All these disorders, no matter how serious, can be remedied. The first reaction to the latest Gross National Product figures will be additional pressure for a tax increase. This would transfer buying power from the consumer to the federal government and permit it to pay its bills.

NEW YORK (AP) — English is a language of glory.

It is a great tongue for saying memorable things, such as, "Give me liberty or give me death." "Don't give up the ship." "United we stand, divided we fall." "Keep off the grass," and "Pleaze step arrer ennadabus."

Every schoolchild soon learns a number of these deathless utterances. He quotes them at every opportunity throughout the rest of his life as proof that he has been educated.

What our schools fail to teach, however, is that the English language can also become a disaster area. It is full of pitfalls. No other form of communication makes it simpler for a person to put his foot in his mouth in public.

Here, for example, is a brief catalogue of remarks that often only catapult a fellow deeper into woe:

"If you don't see it, ask for it."

"Only one to a customer."

"I think I'll have to meet the last raise of yours just to keep the game honest."

"This year I'm not going to ask for advice on how to figure out my income tax. I think I know enough to do it myself."

"I think your problem, boss, is that you're gripping your putter wrong. Let me show you how I do it."

"We don't really have enough to retire on yet, but of course we plan to start a small business. Anybody can make money these days."

"Okay, double or nothing."

"I'd like to take you away from all this, Myrtle."

"It's an easy trick anyone can do. I just take the tablecloth in both hands, then give it a quick jerk. It comes off so fast it leaves your glasses and dishes standing there intact. Now watch as I—"

"Don't miss the show just because you can't get a baby sitter. Leave your kids with us. They're about the same age as ours, and they'll probably get along famously."

"What do I need with a lawyer? It's an open and shut case. All I'll have to do is tell the judge the simple facts of the matter."

"They're pretty weak. One more drink ought to fix me up just fine."

"If it's a favor you want, don't hesitate. After all, what's a friend for?"

"The zipper seems stuck. Here, let me fix it."

Joey Bishop

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "If I hadn't had a 39-week contract, I wouldn't be on the air today," says Joey Bishop, who is alive and thriving on late-night ABC.

This week marks the first anniversary of Bishop's brave foray into Carson country, and he received a handsome anniversary present from the network: a 39-week extension of his contract, putting his show into the fall of 1969.

Between celebrations, the sad-faced comic paused to reflect on the events of his year of entertaining the insomniacs. A veteran of four rugged years with a weekly series, he takes a realistic view of the television rate-raz.

"If I had only a 26-week contract with ABC, I'm sure the network would have dropped me," he reasoned. "When you're set for only 26 weeks, that means that the executives will be making their decisions during the first 13 weeks. That could have been fatal for me."

The Bishop show was a slow starter. Reviews of the opening performance were generally unfavorable, and Joey thinks he knows why.

"Everyone who does this kind of show began quietly," he said. "Jack Paar started very slowly, so did Merv Griffin and Johnny Carson; Mike Douglas began in Cleveland, for heaven's sake. They were able to break in without too much attention, and they gradually built and held their audiences."

"But with me! For six months there had been talk about what I was going to do. Finally I went on the air, and the critics and viewers were told: 'This is what you've been waiting for!' There was bound to be some hostility."

"I was against selling the show; I thought it was a mistake to come on too strong. I said, 'Let's go on quietly and have the show start to build.' But it wasn't done that way, and I got clobbered."

Bishop refused to panic when ratings thumped into the cellar. He continued working hard on preparation, spending long days at his Vine Street headquarters. His campaign to build an audience wasn't aided by a network strike which kept his show off the air for three weeks; the ratings dropped while re-runs played.

But then the show started to climb. The Johnny Carson show on NBC continues to top the ratings, but ABC officials are eminently satisfied with Joey's performance, as evidenced by this week's renewal.

"Without being too hammy about it, I would say that the greatest satisfaction with the show is in being able to do some good for humanity," he remarked. "Like when an orphanage notified us that tickets to its benefit were selling poorly. We mentioned it on the show and sales jumped from $4,000 to $27,000. That sort of thing gives you a kick."

The Rev. R. J. Varnell Accepts Lancaster Church

THE REV. AND MRS. R. J. VARNELL

In 1958 the Rev. Raymond J. Varnell came to Circleville as pastor of the Church of God. The congregation was small and they worshiped in a converted farm house. Now, ten years later Rev. Varnell is leaving to pastor a church in Lancaster.

He leaves behind him evidence of his labors in behalf of the church. From a small congregation it has grown to many times its former size. The Sunday School alone has grown from 35 to an average of 113 attending each Sunday.

Through the leadership of Rev. Varnell the new brick church at 400 Nicholas Drive was built. The value of the church is approximately $65,000 and the congregation has also purchased a parsonage, evidence of his diligence in working with the members.

When asked about how he felt toward the people of Circleville he said that he wished to express his deep appreciation to the community for its friendship, kindness and cooperation during his stay. He also stated that he served the local school system as a bus driver for nine years and owes the school and the children a debt of gratitude for many lessons in life he learned during that time. Many of the children who rode on his bus returned to be married by him after they had finished school.

Rev. and Mrs. Varnell are the parents of three children, two daughters and one son. They are Glenda, who now is Mrs. Cecil Combs and is living in Delaware; Darlene, now Mrs. Thomas Hart of Circleville, and Michael Ray, who is 12, and will enter Junior High School next fall. The family his wife in particular, have been a great help to Rev. Varnell in his work. Even when his work for the church meant his being away a great deal of the time and having irregular hours, they all have been most cooperative and understanding, realizing that his life is dedicated to his church.

When time for retirement comes he hopes to come to Circleville to live. The stay here has made many friends for the family and ties that they do not want to break.

Rev. Varnell came to Circleville from Chattanooga, Tenn. Before that he held pastorates in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Tennessee. He graduated from Lee College in Cleveland, Tenn., where he had special courses in Christian education during summer training classes.

This Sunday he will preach his farewell sermon, all friends are invited to attend. He states that it is with regret that he leaves, but feels his time has been well spent here and in Lancaster there is another church to be built. This he will do and from past efforts it will be done well, and when the time comes he will be back in Circleville where he really feels that home is for him and his family.

Disclose Bess Truman Nearly Caused Crisis

Harry Got Mad At Ambassador For 'Rudeness'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Acheson says Bess Truman once intervened to prevent her fiery-tempered husband from possibly straining America's international relations with a misguided attempt to avenge her honor.

Acheson, secretary of state under President Harry S. Truman, said Thursday the incident was touched off when the ambassadors of two unfriendly nations both were invited to a White House fete. One ambassador withdrew at the last moment, he said.

"The President," said Acheson, "believing the ambassador had been rude to Mrs. Truman, instructed me the next morning to ask for the ambassador's recall."

Acheson, telling his story at a White House gathering for an unveiling of a new portrait of Mrs. Truman, said he told the president it was the protocol of the state department to invite the envoys to the same dinner.

But the president remained unmoved, said Acheson, until Mrs. Truman talked to him over the phone, then told the secretary of state: "You must not let Harry do what he's going to do."

Acheson said Truman backed down only after the secretary pretended to quote criticisms which he attributed to Mrs. Truman.

The names of the ambassadors, their countries or the year the incident took place weren't revealed by Acheson.

Mrs. Truman, who lives with the former president in Independence, Mo., didn't attend the ceremony. But on hand was the Trumans' daughter, Mrs. Clifford Daniel of New York.

Logan Sale 'Huge Success'

Retail merchants of Logan termed their "3-Hour Madness" sale held from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday a huge success. The merchants cooperated in sponsoring the unusual trade promotion by opening their stores for three hours, in addition to regular store hours.

In spite of the longer hours, comments from the merchants ranged from "very successful" to being in favor of having two or three such sales a year. "The traffic was really piled," was another comment.

The promotion was one of six to be sponsored this year in Logan by the retail merchants division of the Logan Trade Club.

2 Columbus Men Are Charged With Robbery

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—Two Columbus men were charged Thursday in the robbery-beating of Dr. Edward B. Roller, 89, an amputee who practices medicine from a wheel chair.

Appearing in municipal court on charges of strong arm robbery were Fred A. Grambo, 51, and William Gallagher, 35. Bond was set at $10,000 each.

Dr. Roller was beaten and robbed of $600 at his office Wednesday. He and an assistant, Helen Francisco, were bound with tape during the attack at his office in nearby Lithopolis.

Grambo, who served time in the Ohio Penitentiary, and Gallagher were picked up shortly after the incident when their car was involved in a traffic accident in the area.

Sheriff Wants Tiger Caged; Man Objects

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tammy is a 110-pound Bengal tiger and a gentle host at children's pajama parties.

But the Dade County sheriff's office says William Seefeldt, the owner, will have to cage his 10-month-old pet. The cage is necessary to qualify for the permit to keep her.

"She is house broken" with seven generations of captivity behind her," Seefeldt said Thursday. "If they put her in a cage away from people she would go wild."

Tammy was born in a litter of five tiny tigers at the county's Crandon Park Zoo. The zoo traded the excess cubs to an animal dealer and Seefeldt bought Tammy from the dealer. He didn't reveal the price but Dr. Gordon Hubbell, superintendent of the zoo, said tiger prices range from about $600 to $1,200.

Seefeldt said he bought Tammy as a followup to other unusual pets—a bear, falcon, fox and skunk.

Seefeldt had had Tammy six months and she's a plaything for the neighborhood children.

This week 25 of them held a pajama party with Tammy as guest of honor. She even visited Hialeah High School.

"The adult neighbors are afraid," said Hubbell. Thursday, the sheriff's deputies pointed to the statute requiring permits for carnivorous animals including tigers. They said Seefeldt would get the permit when Tammy got a cage.

Seefeldt said he would take his case to court. Dr. Hubbell, who recommended that Tammy be caged, said he had never testified against a tiger but felt the ruling would support the sheriff.

Russian Doctor's Day Full of Red Tape, Paperwork

SLATES REVIVAL — First Baptist Church, N. Court St., will feature Wayne Bristow, left, as the evangelist and Darcie Hodges, vocalist during its revival services 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily, April 21-28. Everyone is welcome to attend. The nursery will be open at all services.

By JOHN WEYLAND
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Up to half a doctor's day in this bureaucratic society must be devoted to filling out forms and other paperwork.
This is disclosed in a detailed report of a Soviet doctor's life, given in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.
Dr. Svetlana Parkhomenko makes 105 rubles or $116.67 a month, so she is about as well off as a typical teacher.

Dr. Parkhomenko works at a polyclinic, as do about two-thirds of this country's doctors. The polyclinics are like outpatient centers at Western hospitals.
Treatment is free, though the patients have to buy some of their own medicine.

Dr. Parkhomenko is expected to handle five cases an hour at the clinic, No. 32 in the Zhdanov district of Leningrad.
House calls to bedridden patients, which take more time because of the distances involved, average 30 minute each.
Dr. Parkhomenko, 30, received the normal six years of medical education after being graduated from high school. She married an army officer, Stanislav, and they have a 7-year-old son who is looked after at his school. After her day at the clinic the doctor has to shop, prepare the family dinner and do housework.

The couple has moved around a lot because of the husband's military career. Their apartment is filled with secondhand furniture picked up along the way.
Dr. Parkhomenko hopes eventually to do postgraduate study and become a specialist, which would mean better pay and less routine.

A woman going into medicine is no rarity in the Soviet Union. It boasts 26 doctors per 10,000 people, against 1 per 10,000 in the United States, and three-quarters of these are women.
On her vacations, to get away from it all, she never reveals that she is a doctor. But she confesses that her professional training is often too much for her and she finds she has not really escaped: "I catch myself thinking—this person over there has kidney trouble, that one shows all the symptoms of diabetes . . ."

Disclose Bess Truman Nearly Caused Crisis

Harry Got Mad At Ambassador For 'Rudeness'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Acheson says Bess Truman once intervened to prevent her fiery-tempered husband from possibly straining America's international relations with a misguided attempt to avenge her honor.

Acheson, secretary of state under President Harry S. Truman, said Thursday the incident was touched off when the ambassadors of two unfriendly nations both were invited to a White House fete. One ambassador withdrew at the last moment, he said.

"The President," said Acheson, "believing the ambassador had been rude to Mrs. Truman, instructed me the next morning to ask for the ambassador's recall."

Acheson, telling his story at a White House gathering for an unveiling of a new portrait of Mrs. Truman, said he told the president it was the protocol officer's fault for inviting the feuding envoys to the same dinner.

But the president remained unmoved, said Acheson, until Mrs. Truman talked to him over the phone, then told the secretary of state: "You must not let Harry do what he's going to do."

Acheson said Truman backed down only after the secretary pretended to quote criticisms which he attributed to Mrs. Truman.

The names of the ambassadors, their countries or the year the incident took place weren't revealed by Acheson.

Mrs. Truman, who lives with the former president in Independence, Mo., didn't attend the ceremony. But on hand was the Trumans' daughter, Mrs. Clifton Daniel of New York.

Logan Sale

'Huge Success'

Retail merchants of Logan termed their "3-Hour Madness" sale held from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday a huge success. The merchants cooperated in sponsoring the unusual trade promotion by opening their stores for three hours, in addition to regular store hours.

In spite of the longer hours, comments from the merchants ranged from "very successful" to being in favor of having two or three such sales a year. "The traffic was really piled," was another comment.

The promotion was one of six to be sponsored this year in Logan by the retail merchants division of the Logan Trade Club.

2 Columbus Men Are Charged With Robbery

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—Two Columbus men were charged Thursday in the robbery-beating of Dr. Edward B. Roller, 89, an amputee who practices medicine from a wheel chair.

Appearing in municipal court on charges of strong arm robbery were Fred A. Grambo, 51, and William Gallagher, 35. Bond was set at $10,000 each.

Dr. Roller was beaten and robbed of $600 at his office Wednesday. He and an assistant, Helen Francisco, were bound with tape during the attack at his office in nearby Lithopolis.

Grambo, who served time in the Ohio Penitentiary, and Gallagher were picked up shortly after the incident when their car was involved in a traffic accident in the area.

Business Briefs

Shareholders attending the annual meeting of Container Corporation of America held in Chicago Tuesday voted to increase authorized common stock by five million shares and to establish a new issue of five million shares of preferred stock to facilitate diversification and expansion of the company which has a paperboard mill in Circleville.

At the same time, stockholders were informed that a capital investment of approximately $64,000,000 — the biggest single capital investment ever made by the company — would be made to expand the corporation's mill facilities at Fernandina Beach, Fla.

The company reported earnings of $8,232,000 or 74 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1968 on sales of $107,137,000. This compares with the record $8,556,000 or 76 cents per share, on sales of $111,049,000 in the same period of 1967.

In a meeting prior to the stockholder's meeting, directors of the corporation voted a regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents per common share.

Sheriff Wants Tiger Caged; Man Objects

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tammy is a 110-pound Bengal tiger and a gentle host at children's pajama parties.

But the Dade County sheriff's office says William Seefeldt, the owner, will have to cage his 10-month-old pet. The cage is necessary to qualify for the permit to keep her.

"She is house broken" with seven generations of captivity behind her," Seefeldt said Thursday. "If they put her in a cage away from people she would go wild."

Tammy was born in a litter of five tiny tigers at the county's Crandon Park Zoo. The zoo traded the excess cubs to an animal dealer and Seefeldt bought Tammy from the dealer. He didn't reveal the price but Dr. Gordon Hubbell, superintendent of the zoo, said tiger prices range from about $600 to $1,200.

Seefeldt said he bought Tammy as a follow-up to other unusual pets—a bear, falcon, fox and skunk.

Seefeldt has had Tammy six months and she's a plaything for the neighborhood children. This week 25 of them held a pajama party with Tammy as guest of honor. She even visited Hialeah High School.

"The adult neighbors are afraid," said Hubbell.

Thursday, the sheriff's deputies pointed to the statute requiring permits for carnivorous animals including tigers. They said Seefeldt would get the permit when Tammy got a cage.

Seefeldt said he would take his case to court. Dr. Hubbell, who recommended that Tammy be caged, said he had never testified against a tiger but felt the ruling would support the sheriff.

Tiger Won't Enter Cage In Phillie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For almost two weeks Tasha, a Siberian tiger, has refused to leave the dried-up moat around the Philadelphia zoo's lion house, and come back to her cage.

On Thursday, zoo officials took firm action to get the big cat back home. Tasha took equally firm action—she wouldn't go.

On April 6 the tiger wandered into the moat and stayed there, refusing to eat or enter a baited cage dropped down to her. She began appearing languid.

Curator of Mammals Frederick A. Ulmer and two assistants came armed with tranquilizers, ropes, sticks and a high-powered rifle Thursday.

They fired two tranquilizers into the big cat then went down to prod her into the cage. Tasha wouldn't budge.

They finally got her into the loop of a lasso and five other assistants lent a hand. Tasha only growled and pawed ferociously.

Finally Ulmer saw Tasha was breathing heavily and feared she may have suffered a heart attack and called the exercise off for the time being.

Asks Release From Prison

CLEVELAND (AP)—Former Canton mortgage broker Robert K. Domer has asked the U.S. District Court to allow him to file a pauper's petition for his release from a federal penitentiary where he is serving a 10-year term.

Domer, who is serving his sentence in Terre Haute, Ind., was convicted on a charge of burning an Akron fruit peddler alive in 1963. He was later granted a retrial and acquitted in 1966.

The state charged Domer burned Howard F. Riddle to death so he could fake his own death and collect $228,000 insurance money for his estate.

After his acquittal Domer was sentenced to a 10-year term for mail fraud and making false statements to a government agency.

He contends that the court erred 15 ways in imposing the jail term.

Smokey Bear In 24th Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smokey the Bear, given a resounding vote of confidence by the public and his sponsors, starts his 24th year today of telling the people: "Only YOU can prevent forest fires."

Sponsors gave him the go-ahead Thursday after disclosing a nationwide public opinion poll showed 90 per cent of all adults and nearly all school-age children are fully acquainted with his efforts to stop man-made fires.

The fire-fighting bear and his campaign are sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service, the National Association of State Foresters and the Advertising Council.

White Attacks Vietnam Policy

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP) — William L. White, candidate for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, said Thursday that President Johnson is running the Vietnam war "out of a 10-gallon hat."

White told GOP women in Fulton County that Johnson has been "acting as if he were a Texas rancher endeavoring to drive pesky sheepherders from Hanoi off his preserve."

A Bird in Hand

Copyright 1968 Keister Advertising Service, Inc., Strasburg, Va.

The hands are gentle and deft . . . the bird-banding process painless and quick. Soon the bird will fly off, safe and unharmed, unaware that it has become another link in the chain of research concerning the migratory habits of birds.

Our feathered friend has no interest in the fact that his experience ultimately will help chart the flight lines of all migrant birds. With heart beating wildly in its soft, downy throat, it longs only to be free.

Sometimes people are like that bird. Caught in circumstances beyond our control, we flail and thrash about. Fear and doubt overwhelm us and we fail to realize and acknowledge the loving arm of God that is present and sustaining in every situation.

Place your faith and trust in God and His Church. In times of need, strength and help are yours for the asking.

Farmers, Sportsmen Assn. To Raise Young Pheasants

The Pickaway Farmers and Sportsmen Assn. has been granted a permit for raising and releasing 500 pheasants this summer it was announced during a meeting of the organization Thursday.

The club plans to erect pens on county owned land near the Children's Home. Birds will be cared for by club members until they are large enough to fly and will then be released at various spots throughout the county.

Club members will assist Division of Parks personnel in an attempt to complete the nature trail at A. W. Marion State Park soon.

The Westfall baseball team was handed its first defeat of the season, an 8-3 loss to visit Washington C.H. Thursday.

All three of the Mustang runs came in the fourth inning.

Andy Hamman led off with a single, Gene Carfrey was safe on an error and Tony Lightie was hit by a pitched ball to load the bases.

Hamman then scored on an error, and Ed Cornwell cracked a single to score Carfrey and Lightie.

Bill Blair was tagged with the loss. He whiffed nine and walked three, going the route for the Mustangs.

Washington scored two runs in the second inning, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the seventh. Three of the four Mustang errors let in four of Washington's runs.

Saturday, Westfall meets Portsmouth Clay at noon in a tournament being staged at Southeastern High School. Nelsonville York and the host school are the other teams in the tourney.

Westfall has a 5-1 record while Washington C.H. is now 3-2 for the year.

Celts Seek NBA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics, who twice have bounced back from the verge of elimination, hope to make it three in a row over the Philadelphia 76ers tonight and set another record in the National Basketball Association.

Never before in the NBA playoffs has a team won a best-of-7 series after being down 3-1. Thus it would be an unprecedented feat for the Celtics to whip the 76ers again in the deciding game tonight in Philadelphia.

Such an accomplishment would give Boston the Eastern Division final playoff title and put the Celts in position to win back the NBA championship. They had won an unprecedented eight consecutive NBA crowns until Philadelphia took the championship last year.

Tonight's winner will oppose the Los Angeles Lakers in the championship playoff series with the first game scheduled for Sunday at either Philadelphia or Boston.

doubled and came in on Lee May's single. On Thursday, the big left-hander had to work a bit harder for the victory, going three innings before another Rose double broke it up.

Rose, who homered tying the game in the eighth, doubled Leo Cardenas across with the winning run in the 12th. Cardenas, who opened with a single, moved to second on Chico Ruiz hit before Rose delivered.

John Edwards, traded to St. Louis by Cincinnati during the winter, drove in two runs with a double giving the Cards the lead they held until Rose's home run tied the game.

Atlanta was down to its last out, trailing Chicago 3-2 in the ninth. But Sandy Valdespino singled and pinch hitter Mike Lum tripled him home. Pete Mikkelsen relieved for the Cubs and Alou lined his second homer of the game to win it for the Braves.

"It wasn't a bad pitch," said Mikkelsen. "He just hit the heck out of it."

Alou and Clete Boyer had accounted for Atlanta's first two runs with solo homers—Boyer's run batted in was the 500th of his major league career. Adolfo Phillips had a two-run shot for the Cubs.

It may have been a costly victory for the Braves. Slugger Joe Torre was struck in the side of the head by a pitch in the eighth inning and left the field bleeding from the nose. He was taken to a hospital for X rays.

"The preliminary examination on Torre looks good," said Atlanta Manager Luman Harris.

Mays stroked two doubles against the Mets—the second one clearing the bases in the seventh inning. That wiped out a 3-2 New York lead built mostly on pitcher Don Cardwell's two-run homer.

The Giants had loaded the bases with two out against Cardwell on two singles and a walk. Danny Frisella relieved and Mays sliced a two-strike pitch to right field for the winning hit.

The two doubles gave Mays 1,116 extra base hits in his career, tying him with Ted Williams for seventh place on the alltime list.

AgriCo is chemically mixed—every pellet contains the same amount of N-P-K, Secondary and Micro-nutrients. These elements can't possibly separate in shipping and handling—because they are all bound together in each pellet.

You get more uniform, more efficient distribution of plant foods over every inch of your fields . . . for thicker, more uniform growth; for better yields and higher income.

AGRICO Mixed Fertilizers are a giant step on the Critical Path to Farm Profit. Get more detailed information from . . .

Eye Tornado Safety Action For Buckeyes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Community action for safe-guards against tornadoes and severe thunderstorms was urged Thursday at a Statehouse conference of Ohio and federal officials.

About 30 representatives of natural disaster organizations, the Highway Patrol, ham radio operators and others attended the session in the Civil Defense quarters of Deputy Director James F. Worster in the Capitol basement under the governor's office.

Gerald L. Shak of Garden City, N. Y., representing the Weather Bureau's Eastern Division, said Ohio is in a tornado-prone five-state area. He asked those at the meeting to "filter their enthusiasm" to local officials in cities, counties, townships and other areas for self-help preparedness against storms.

Shak said a hurricane warning system already is in operation, but explained that such storms give advance warnings whereas tornadoes with funnel-shaped black clouds have a "short time fuse."

Civil Defense safety rules advise people to stay away from windows during tornadoes, seek shelter in cellars or building basements and for those in schools to stay out of gymnasiums and areas with wide roof spans.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The red brick house high on Maple Bluff looks across the blue waters of Lake Mendota to the shining dome of Wisconsin's Capital.

So does it occupant. The square old mansion has a bronze plaque beside the door identifying it as a "registered national historic landmark."

The occupant sometimes feels as though he ought to wear the same sort of identification.

But Bronson C. La Follette, heir to the glittering name of Wisconsin's greatest political dynasty, has his mind on the future even though he is surrounded to the historic past.

La Follette is a candidate for governor of Wisconsin this year, a post in which members of his family already have served 12 years in this century.

For the first of them, his grandfather Robert Marion La Follette, three terms as governor were only a starting point toward the Senate career that made him an immortal of American dissent.

Bronson's father, Robert M. La Follette Jr., began—and ended—his political career in the Senate, extending the family tenure there to 40 years. There

Cancer Drive Launched by City, County

With emphasis centered on cancer's seven warning signals, the American Cancer Society is preparing to launch its 1968 educational and fund-raising Crusade.

The door-to-door campaign in Pickaway County will be conducted during the week of April 21-27 by nearly 500 volunteers throughout the area, according to Robert Holycross, Pickaway County Crusade Chairman.

The county goal in the fund-raising campaign is $7,500. These funds, in part, are used in constant research into cancer and its cure.

Holycross urged all local area citizens to acquaint themselves with cancer's seven warning signals and to seek medical advice as promptly as possible after a signal has been discovered.

"Thirty years ago," he continued, "fewer than one in five were saved from cancer, while today it is one in three. Under ideal conditions, we are capable of saving one in two." The chief reason for the hopefulness of recovery from the disease, he pointed out, was quick detection and equally prompt attention by a competent physician.

In conjunction with the door-to-door campaign, the Cancer Crusade will have a volunteer group of girls from the city's high school in the downtown area Saturday. They will take part in what has been designated as "tag day." Donations will purchase a tag to signify contributions to the county-wide crusade.

Bronson La Follette Keeps Wisconsin Dynasty Alive

was elected to the House of Representatives when he was 29; "Young Bob" was named to succeed his father in the U.S. Senate at 30—youngest senator since Henry Clay.

But Bronson's record is not all that delayed—he first was elected attorney general of Wisconsin at 28, and was the only Democratic constitutional officer to withstand a Republican sweep two years ago when he won re-election.

On the other hand, his uncle, Phillip Fox La Follette, also a three-time governor, retired from politics at 41, when the National Progressive party he founded waned in the rising nationalism before World War II.

"But it had been more than 20 years now since the La Follettes passed from the national scene, and in a sense they have become defied."

"I have to keep reminding people that I am just a plain human being. I make mistakes."

"What I have to do to live with myself is put the past behind me and look to the future. Otherwise, I couldn't cut it."

But the past, as expressed by the previous visionaries of his name and lineage, does not seem so far away when this latest La Follette talks political philosophy.

His grandfather thundered against the railroads and unregulated utilities and sweatshop labor and political bossism; his father for the rights of unions and civil liberties and education; his uncle, on the state level, for tax reform and government efficiency.

Bronson, whose winning slogan as attorney general identified him as "the people's advocate," talks of consumer protection, the responsibility of the state in meeting the urban crises, upgrading of law enforcement training and personnel, property tax reform.

"I suppose you could call it the New Progressivism," he says candidly. "In some respects my thinking picks up where the La Follette Progressives left off. What it means, basically, is the re-establishment of state's rights in areas of responsibility to the people's needs."

His grandfather, of course, broke from the Republican Party and ran as the Progressive candidate for president in 1924; his father was elected both as a Progressive and as a Republican, and finally was defeated in 1946 when he returned to the Republican primary against a young judge named Joseph R. McCarthy.

The last Progressive elected governor of Wisconsin was in 1942, and although there was considerable sentiment to take the party's fading powers into the Democratic party two decades ago, Bronson is the first La Follette to win office as a Democrat.

He now has strong ties to the Democratic party, or at least to one of its wings. He is a friend of New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who, as U.S. attorney general, gave Bronson his first political office six years ago, as an assistant U.S. attorney.

But he made the turn to the Democratic party largely because the evolution of the traditional La Follette views on social reforms—the "Wisconsin Idea"—found more support there. These included many advances that later won national enactment: the corrupt practices act, workmen's compensation, a child labor law, state civil service, the first eight-hour labor law, compulsory education—all these began here, and withstood constitutional challenge.

At the moment, La Follette is largely keeping his own counsel in the mansion above the lake where he lives with his wife, Lynn, their 8-year-old son—Robert M. La Follette IV—and 6-year-old daughter Deborah. He has not yet said it, and this grandson of the first woman graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School may never need to echo his father's statement of 1925, when he announced he would seek his dead father's vacant Senate seat.

"I am well aware that the relationship in itself does not entitle my candidacy to consideration," young Bob said. "But at the same time, that relationship does not disqualify me for high political office."

Eye Tornado Safety Action For Buckeyes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Community action for safeguards against tornadoes and severe thunderstorms was urged Thursday at a Statehouse conference of Ohio and federal officials.

About 30 representatives of natural disaster organizations, the Highway Patrol, ham radio operators and others attended the session in the Civil Defense quarters of Deputy Director James F. Worster in the Capitol basement under the governor's office.

Gerald L. Shak of Garden City, N. Y., representing the Weather Bureau's Eastern Division, said Ohio is in a tornado-prone five-state area. He asked those at the meeting to "filter their enthusiasm" to local officials in cities, counties, townships and other areas for self-help preparedness against storms.

Shak said a hurricane warning system already is in operation, but explained that such storms give advance warnings whereas tornadoes with funnel-shaped black clouds have a "short time fuse."

Civil Defense safety rules advise people to stay away from windows during tornadoes, seek shelter in cellars or building basements and for those in schools to stay out of gymnasiums and areas with wide roof spans.

Bronson La Follette Keeps Wisconsin Dynasty Alive

By DION HENDERSON
Associated Press Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The red brick house high on Maple Bluff looks across the blue waters of Lake Mendota to the shining dome of Wisconsin's Capital.

So does it occupant. The square old mansion has a bronze plaque beside the door identifying it as a "registered national historic landmark."

The occupant sometimes feels as though he ought to wear the same sort of identification.

But Bronson C. La Follette, heir to the glittering name of Wisconsin's greatest political dynasty, has his mind on the future even though he is surrounded to the historic past.

La Follette is a candidate for governor of Wisconsin this year, a post in which members of his family already have served 12 years in this century.

For the first of them, his grandfather Robert Marion La Follette, three terms as governor were only a starting point toward the Senate career that made him an immortal of American dissent.

Bronson's father, Robert M. La Follette Jr., began—and ended—his political career in the Senate, extending the family tenure there to 40 years. There is no reason to believe that Bronson himself will not eventually seek to reclaim that seat. La Follette now is 32, and says ruefully, "I'm a little slower than the other members of the family."

He was foreign minister 1963-65.

Cancer Drive Launched by City, County

With emphasis centered on cancer's seven warning signals, the American Cancer Society is preparing to launch its 1968 educational and fund-raising Crusade.

The door-to-door campaign in Pickaway County will be conducted during the week of April 21-27 by nearly 500 volunteers throughout the area, according to Robert Holycross, Pickaway County Crusade Chairman.

The county goal in the fund-raising campaign is $7,500. These funds, in part, are used in constant research into cancer and its cure.

Holycross urged all local area citizens to acquaint themselves with cancer's seven warning signals and to seek medical advice as promptly as possible after a signal has been discovered.

"Thirty years ago," he continued, "fewer than one in five were saved from cancer, while today it is one in three. Under ideal conditions, we are capable of saving one in two." The chief reason for the hopefulness of recovery from the disease, he pointed out, was quick detection and equally prompt attention by a competent physician.

In conjunction with the door-to-door campaign, the Cancer Crusade will have a volunteer group of girls from the city's high school in the downtown area Saturday. They will take part in what has been designated as "tag day." Donations will purchase a tag to signify contributions to the county-wide crusade.

But Bronson's record is not all that delayed—he first was elected attorney general of Wisconsin at 28, and was the only Democratic constitutional officer to withstand a Republican sweep two years ago when he won reelection.
